Cantor Rosenblatt Concert Real Treat To a Large Audience

The music loving people of this community as well as the members and friends of the Jewish Community Center owe a very real debt of gratitude to the Center for the privilege of listening for an evening to that marvelous master of song, Cantor Josef Rosenblatt. The Orpheum Theatre was filled with an audience which showed its appreciation and enjoyment of the music by its intent silence during the singing and its enthusiastic applause.

It is needless to say that it was a concert such as has never before been given in Kingston, with its beautiful traditional music of the Hebrew people, so different from any other religious music, together with a few numbers which all were acquainted with. The piano solos by Cantor Rosenblatt's accompanist were also thoroughly appreciated.

All that had been said of the marvelous voice of the singer, in the advance press notices was indeed true. But one must hear him to fully appreciate the rich resonance of the beautiful baritone voice that without marked change of quality and with utmost legato passes into a lyric falsetto, capable of the most florid as well as the sweetest tonal effects.

Again Cantor Rosenblatt is a master of perfect pianissimo. With the full sense of withheld power the tones would reach almost the vanishing point without ever becoming thin in quality. And in all of his singing the soloist uses amazing technique absolutely as a means to an end, never as the end to be attained.

His sincerity, his serious sensing of the centuries of tradition back of the religious songs, his dignified simplicity all made a deep impression upon his entire audience.

To those in the audience unaccustomed to the Hebrew and Yiddish language and music, the lack of precedent kept them for a time from the fullest enjoyment of the program, but little by little it impressed itself indelibly upon their musical sensibilities.

The program included:

Eliyishe Shtetele.
Yahrzeit (Yiddish and Hebrew) .... Silberta
Menashe (Yiddish) .... Jewish Folk Song
Shomer Yisroel (Hebrew) .... Cantor Rosenblatt
Eloky n'shomo... Cantor Rosenblatt

Songs other than Hebrew or Yiddish were "The Last Rose of Summer" by Moore, in which the flute-like sweetness of the falsetto carried the older members of the audience back to the days of Adelina Patti and her singing of the same song.

In the "Chi Scene Scordia" (Italian) by Barthelmi Cantor Rosenblatt showed to his audience his wonderful operatic ability. As an encore to this number he sung a "Lullaby" of his own composition that was fascinating. He also sang "Mother Machree" and "Pearl Gatherers", to the great delight of his listeners.

The piano solos so admirably played by William Friedman were: First Movement "Moonlight Sonata" .... Beethoven
Spanish Serenade .... William Firedman
Nocturne in E Minor ..... Chopin
March of the Dwarfs .... Grieg
Bourree .... Bach

Of all the songs of the evening, Kol Nidre by Cantor Rosenblatt was unquestionably the most perfect in musicianship, interpretation and marvelous tone quality and smoothly flowing legato that deeply affected the entire audience. "Eli, Eli" by Sandler made a beautiful farewell which was sung all too soon. The cantor was gracious enough to add "A Song of Palestine" as an encore. It was a song to live long in the memory of all present.

During one of the intermissions, Benjamin Suskind, president of the Jewish Community Center, expressed the deep appreciation of that body of the splendid support given them in making possible such a wonderful musical treat for the people of Kingston. In the bringing about of this concert, especially in the transfer from the Community Center building to the Orpheum Theatre, the Community Center was tremendously indebted to Mrs. Klein for her untiring efforts to make the concert the success it was. To her and every one who had in any way contributed to the great success of the evening, Mr. Suskind expressed the thanks of the Community Center.

SMALL WILL RECEIVE ADDITIONAL SENTENCE

Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 17 (AP).—Already serving 22 years for robbery, George Small, crippled Auburn prison inmate, tomorrow will hear his sentence lengthened as the result of his conviction late yesterday in Cayuga county court of escape during the riot of July 28, 1929.

Small faces an added maximum term of 17 years, ten years for carrying a concealed weapon and seven years for escape, when he comes up for sentencing in the same courtroom in which he obtained an acquittal in December on a charge of murder. It was in connection with the same disturbance that the present charge was based.

League Recommendations In Manchurian Dispute

(By the Associated Press.)

These are some of the outstanding recommendations in the League of Nations report of the Manchurian dispute:

The State of Manchukuo must be dissolved and there must be set up in Manchuria a governing organization under the sovereignty of and compatible with the administrative integrity of China.

The dispute must be settled according to the principles of the league covenant, the Kellogg-Briand pact and the nine-power treaty.

Japan must withdraw its troops from Manchuria.

China and Japan, with a league committee assisting, should open negotiations with a view to settling their dispute.

The United States and Soviet Russia, both non-members of the league will be invited to participate as members of that league committee.

The ten essentials to a satisfactory solution of the Manchurian dispute as stated in Chapter IX of the Lytton report, basis of the League of Nations present report on that dispute are:

1. Compatibility with the interests of both China and Japan.
2. Consideration for the interests of Soviet Russia.
3. Conformity with existing multilateral treaties.
4. Recognition of Japan's rights and interests in Manchuria.
5. Establishment of new treaty relations between China and Japan.
6. Effective provision for settlement of future disputes.
7. Establishment of Manchurian autonomy.
8. Insurance of internal order in Manchuria and security against external aggression.
9. Encouragement of an economic rapprochement between China and Japan.
10. International cooperation in the reconstruction of China itself.

League of Nations Seeks Aid of U. S. To Settle Dispute

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 17 (AP).—The League of Nations report on Manchuria, sent today to all nations of the world by the League's own wireless telegraph station, denounces Japan's policy in that territory and seeks the aid of the United States in settling the dispute.

It declares against the maintenance and recognition of the state of Manchukuo, proposes new negotiations between China and Japan, with the League again assisting, and extends the invitation to participate to Soviet Russia, as well as to America.

The report already has been subscribed to by nineteen leading members of the League. It will be submitted on Tuesday for ratification by the full League assembly, and will be debated on Friday and Saturday of next week before a final vote is taken.

The assembly's pronouncement constitutes with that document the most ambitious international effort ever exerted to regulate a warlike struggle through peaceful means. It embodies the most severe and arresting indictment of the policies of a great power which ever was undertaken.

In issuing the report the League leaders experienced the extremes of apprehension and hope—apprehension lest their bold move for concerted condemnation of a strong state might lead to rupture and a world conflagration; hope that this organized and solemn effort might prove a tremendous victory for the world's peace machinery, and a powerful guarantee against later international disturbance.

The Manchurian question must be settled according to the principles of the League covenant, the Kellogg-Briand pact and the nine-power treaty, the report asserts.

JAPANESE WILL NOT ACCEPT LEAGUE PLANS.

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 17 (AP).—Less than an hour after the League of Nations had transmitted to all the world's governments its report and recommendation of the Manchurian dispute today, Yosuke Matsuoka, the Japanese spokesman, said his government would not accept them.

No Arrests Here.

Central Hudson's New Gas Rate Schedule Is Approved at Albany

A. L. Colligan, district manager of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, announced today that the Public Service Commission has approved the section of their general rate program, announced on January 14 of this year, covering the new gas rate schedule and that this schedule becomes effective March 1.

The adjustments made by the institution of this new schedule of rates will result in a decrease in the company's revenue of $48,000 per year.

The aim of this new schedule has been to simplify the company's rates so that they may be easily understood and to eliminate optional rates as far as possible.

For residence service the new schedule provides a single gas rate applicable to all domestic service, replacing separate rates for automatic water heater service and house heater service, and makes it possible for every residential customer to have the same rate regardless of the purpose for which the gas may be used.

The new rate schedule provides a monthly form of contract and permits service to be discontinued for any period during which it is not desired. The first step in the new rate is 75 cents for the first 300 cubic feet compared with the old rate of 87 cents for the first 100 cubic feet. In addition there are additional steps which provide a lower rate for increased usage.

The new rates require the customer to pay for a minimum of 300 cubic feet of gas in any month in which he uses gas.

Although the new rates require the customer to pay for a minimum of 300 cubic feet of gas in any month in which he makes use of gas, Mr. Colligan explained this amount represents only the use of a single gas range burner for four hours or less per month. The net result is that the average householder or any one else using even a moderate quantity of gas per month will earn a reduction in cost varying from a few cents for the smaller user to larger amounts for those whose volume is proportionately greater. Only those who have gas service for infrequent usage and for occasional convenience and whose total usage per month is unusually small will be affected by the higher first-usage rate.

The new rate structure approved for the Central Hudson is the same in principle as that which the Public Service Commission has adopted for several other similar public utilities in its program to simplify and standardize gas rates wherever possible throughout the state.

People Have Faith In Banks of Detroit

Detroit, Feb. 17 (AP).—The story of Detroit's faith in its banks could be told today in plain figures.

Closed since last Saturday noon because an extraordinary eight-day banking holiday was proclaimed early Tuesday on the heels of a legal holiday, the Detroit banks reopened yesterday, making five per cent of all balances available to depositors.

Those depositors could have withdrawn $20,117,000. Actually, the bankers announced last night when the day's business was totaled, they checked out only $4,615,000—just 17 per cent of the amount "earmarked" for withdrawal during the "holiday." It was considerably less than a routine day's business.

Elsewhere over the state most banks remained closed except in the upper peninsula and John C. Hicks, president of the Michigan Bankers' Association, said that "for the most part, all financial institutions are abiding by the proclamation." Upper peninsula banks in a different Federal Reserve district have remained open all week.

Emergency Work Relief to Move Its Headquarters

Will Shortly Be Located in Factory Building at Smith Avenue and Grand Street—New Quarters Will Afford More Room—2,171 Men Register for Work.

At the meeting of the emergency work relief committee held Thursday evening the committee decided to accept the offer of E. Frank Flanagan, a member of the committee, and locate its headquarters in the factory building at Smith avenue and Grand street. The bureau, which is now located in the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street, will use the lower floor of the factory in the space formerly occupied as a cutting department by the Manhattan Shirt Company. Mr. Flanagan is the owner of the building.

Monday morning the emergency bureau will place a force of men at work getting the new headquarters ready and will take possession on Thursday or Friday of next week.

The bureau has been cramped for room in its present quarters and this has been especially felt on pay day when the men employed were paid off.

It was brought out at the meeting that up to February 14, there were 2,171 unemployed men registered for work at the bureau. About the same period in March of last year there were 1,987 men registered, an increase this year of 184.

Story And Philosophy Of Giuseppe Zangara Who Wounded Cermak

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—He was the kind of fellow who turned against government and [illegible] the [illegible] money for safekeeping.

That was the [illegible] philosophy of Giuseppe Zangara, who from a [illegible] at Miami Wednesday night [illegible] that threatened to [illegible] of American history.

He came to America [illegible] in 1923 from [illegible] before another [illegible] and came from Bohemia. That was Anton Cermak. He [illegible] the golden [illegible] of the new world [illegible] Bohemian dust with [illegible] Anton [illegible] "Tony").

The one hating government and nursing [illegible] from [illegible] at Miami [illegible] evidence [illegible] native [illegible]. The other became mayor of Chicago.

Their paths met Wednesday night at Miami. In the hands of one was an eight dollar pistol. In his heart, by his own words, was the assassination of the President-elect of the United States.

Father Wonders

Back in Calabria, Italy, the father of Giuseppe Zangara has been wondering for several weeks what had become of his son in America. The money which Giuseppe had been sending home was much appreciated by the father, the stepmother and the stepsisters there.

Only a day or two ago a letter came from the Elder Zangara to Vincent Cafaso of Paterson, N. J., an uncle of Giuseppe, asking where the son was. "The money has stopped," wrote the father. "Where is Giuseppe? He was always so prompt with the money."

Cafaso didn't know. He hadn't heard. But he knows now. Giuseppe Zangara is in jail at Miami. Mr. Zangara, Your son Giuseppe tried to shoot down the President-to-be. Maybe the money won't be coming to you in Calabria now—the bright American gold pieces that exchange into scores and scores of lire.

In Calabria, probably under the guidance of his father, the young Giuseppe became a stonemason and bricklayer. When he reached America through the Port of Philadelphia ten years ago he soon found that he could make good money here at his trade.

He took out papers of naturalization. He put his savings in the Postal Savings Bank; and he began to talk from soapboxes.

Zangara always indicated definite political ideas, yet federal agents seeking to trace his career in America have failed to find any connection between him and any anarchist or anti-government group. He was a lone wolf of the soapbox. He registered once as a Republican, and that is the only evidence so far uncovered to indicate a political leaning.

Liked Roosevelt.

Yet when they seized him at Miami, he said his first intention was to kill the Republican President Hoover, and that "personally" he liked Mr. Roosevelt "very much."

His pastime was checkers. His Uncle Vincent Cafaso recalled that today.

Zangara laid his bricks well. His account in the Postal Savings Bank was said to be more than $500, and there were balances in excess of $2,-000 in New Jersey banks.

In mid-August of 1931 Zangara withdrew his money from the banks. What he did with it has not been determined. The assumption is that he preferred to guard it himself, for there has been no evidence of any extravagance. His monthly rent for a considerable part of his time was around $25.

Once in Italy Zangara said he made an attempt upon the life of the King, so his hatred of rulers traces beyond his arrival in America, but the attempt, if indeed there were an attempt, is not recalled in Rome.

Visited New Jersey

Last summer Zangara spent about two months with his uncle in Totowa, N. J. That was after he had been absent for some time. It is believed part of 1931 was spent in California. A Los Angeles tailor identified pictures of Zangara yesterday as those of a man who roomed with him there. The man, said the tailor, tried to get in the fire department and spent some time in night school. He complained often of a "pain in his chest" and talked quite a bit "about governments."

In April, 1932, a Joseph Zangara registered at a Miami hotel, and clerks said he was the same man now held. He appeared to have plenty of money. Frequent packages and letters arrived for him. He said they were special treatments for a stomach disorder which seems to have given him much trouble for several years.

"Sometimes," he repeated last night before falling off into an easy sleep in the Miami jail, "I get the pain in the stomach. Then I want to kill those presidents who oppress the working man."

A good bricklayer, he turned his trowel to assassination, and builded himself a cell.

Sterling Street Dump Fire.

A fire in the Sterling street dump early Thursday evening kept the fire department busy for about two hours extinguishing it.

Expect Mayor Cermak to Recover

Miami, Feb. 17 (AP).—Mayor [illegible] Cermak [illegible] Wednesday night [illegible] Presidentelect of the United States should recover from his wounds, barring complications, it was announced at the hospital early today.

A bulletin signed by Drs. [illegible] Nichol, T. W. Hutson and J. W. [illegible] said:

"Mayor Cermak's rest continues to be broken only for short intervals. His pulse is [illegible] of satisfactory quality. Temperature [illegible] and respiration 20. The blood pressure has recovered to normal level. The patient is requiring much less sedatives."

Hospital authorities said no surgery was contemplated now.

His family and friends are staying close to his sick bed. His youngest daughter, Mrs. Helen Cermak Kenlet, and two of his sons-in-law, Dr. Frank J. Jirka, superintendent of the Public Health Department of Chicago, and Richard V. Graham, Illinois state senator, flew here yesterday.

Governor Henry Horner of Illinois was en route today from Springfield.

The bullet that Giuseppe Zangara fired into the mayor's body in an attempted assassination of President-elect Roosevelt was still in his body today.

An X-ray report said:

"Films of the chest and abdomen show presence of a .32 caliber bullet lying exactly in the midline of the upper anterior margin of the body of the 11th dorsal vertebra. The wound of entry was on the right side posteriorly under the tip of the scapula at about the level of the 9th rib. There is no evidence that it fractured the ribs at these points."

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP).—With [illegible] Zangara [illegible] appointed [illegible] the county [illegible] arraignment of Zangara on [illegible] other persons shot during an unsuccessful attempt on the life of Roosevelt also was postponed until tomorrow.

Those three persons are Miss Margaret Kruis of Newark, N. J.; William Sinnott, New York policeman, and Russell Caldwell of Cocoanut Grove, Fla.

They were slightly wounded when Zangara attempted to kill the president-elect shortly after he returned here Wednesday from a fishing cruise off the coast of Florida.

No charge has yet been placed against the man for the shooting of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago and Mrs. Joe Gill, Miami, who were seriously wounded during the affray. Authorities are withholding action in their case pending the outcome of their wounds.

Shortly before noon, Zangara was led into the court room by Chief Deputy Guy Reeve and Deputy O. J. [illegible], and seated inside the rail. The court room was packed by curious spectators. More than a hundred failed to gain admittance.

Dressed in a light blue spotted shirt, opened at the throat, and white sport trousers and shoes, Zangara gazed uninterestedly about the court room and chatted intermittently with the two deputies, while waiting for Judge Collins to appear.

Sheriff Dan Hardie had 20 deputies stationed in the crowded court room to preserve order. As the crowd was filing out following adjournment, Deputy Virgil Deloe forcibly ejected an unidentified man, who attempted to follow near the prison.

Judge Collins arrived, strode to the front of the room, and without mounting the bench, held up his hand to quiet the spectators. He announced Lewis Twyman, president of the Dade County Bar Association, L. M. McCaskill, past president of the association, and Alfred A. Raia, Miami, had consented to represent the defendant.

Judge Collins conferred briefly with the attorneys and they talked with Zangara briefly before the prisoner was led back to his cell in the jail atop the 21st floor of the county courthouse.

Since his arrest following the shooting Wednesday night, Zangara has taken no food. Yesterday morning he had a half cup of coffee and yesterday afternoon he took a full cup. He said he was dieting because of a stomach ailment.

Today, however, he requested an order of eggs, and deputies ordered [illegible] brought to him. Dr. [illegible] Thomas, county physician, examined the prisoner but made no comment.

Guy Set Free By Jury On Charge Of Killing Walter Wanderwell

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 17 (AP).—The state's explanation of the sensational slaying of "Captain" Walter Wanderwell, a mystery with background and developments rivaling detective fiction, was rejected by a jury.

On the fourth ballot, the jury late last night freed 24-year-old William James "Curley" Guy of the charge he slew the leader of an adventure-seeking band of eight young women and seven men the night of last December 5.

The almost fantastic career of Wanderwell, 36-year-old Polish-born soldier of fortune, was ended by a pistol bullet aboard his yacht "Carma," docked in the ocean harbor here.

In a few days the Carma, a former rum-running craft bought at a customs auction, was to have put out for Hawaii, the South Seas and Oriental ports on a vagabond cruise for which the strangely assorted "crew" members were charged $150 each.

Guy was not a member of the crew, but he and his wife were members of a 1931 [illegible] expedition, Buenos Aires to San Francisco, when they [illegible] in Central America after a quarrel with the leader, Wanderwell. This quarrel was offered by the prosecution as a motive for Wanderwell's death.

Receiving the verdict with a characteristic smile and thanks to members of the jury, Guy was taken immediately to the county jail at Los Angeles [illegible] charge of illegal [illegible]. The charge has been pending almost since the time he was arrested, December 7 in the murder case.

According to her present plans, Mrs. Roosevelt will get along with nine or ten fewer servants than now compose the White House staff. Other economies will be effected by a saving in food and general household expenses.

Workers Fight to Hold Ground in Scandinavia

By ELMER W. PETERSON.

Stockholm (AP)—Backed by political power, as a result of their organized strength, the workingmen of Sweden, Norway and Denmark are fighting to keep up their standard of living.

The employers, also organized, are becoming more determined on readjustment.

Law Helps Danes.

Denmark, recently threatened with a lockout which would have involved 125,000 men and which had the earmarks of a lengthy struggle has the most visible evidence of the unity of the working class in Scandinavia. The industrial war was averted when parliament outlawed both lockouts and strikes for a year.

In Sweden the situation is being revealed, indirectly, by political opposition to plans of the new Social-Democratic government to float large loans for payment of standard wages on unemployment relief projects.

Norway, with memories of the general strike in 1931, is moving cautiously in seeking legislation to make practically all forms of boycott impossible.

Finns Gain Trade.

Finland, by contrast, with a decided lack of organized labor, has managed to cut production costs to the bone, to the advantage of foreign trade, but has lowered the standard of living.

The Central Employers' Association of Denmark, in a recent letter to the prime minister pointed out that Danish wages had increased 160 per cent, while prices of essential commodities had advanced by only 55 per cent. The employers asked, therefore, for a 20 per cent reduction in wages.

In the budget debate in the Swedish riksdag on unemployment relief projects calling for 160 million kronor, the opposition called the budget a "convulsive attempt to maintain the standard of living on a level not justified by the present economic crisis."

Unions Gain Strength.

Organization of labor, through trade unions, collective agreements and the like, has been one of the outstanding features of the social development of the Scandinavian countries for two decades.

Many of the trade unions, through self-administered unemployment insurance, and effective boycotts, have achieved unusual independence. Reduced emigration and the economic crisis, however, have accentuated the problem of maintaining the well-being of workmen.

What many employers now desire is shorter tenure for labor agreements with adjustments of wages at stated intervals and at a given ratio to the general price index on essential commodities.

Japan Adds Trio To Its Elite

Distinguished Old Men Given Rare Rights By Emperor

Tokyo (AP)—By imperial ordinance three "recruits" have been added to a group of unique distinction, those Japanese leaders who have attained such ripe old age and such eminence by service to the nation that they are permitted to carry canes or staves in the presence of Emperor Hirohito.

The number of this venerable and illustrious company is constantly changing, as death removes some members and the infirmities of the late seventies and later years add others. With the three additions, the total became 15.

To gain this proudly-worn privilege, which must be conferred by special order of the sovereign, a Japanese subject must have lived through a distinguished career to an age when it is assumed growing enfeeblement makes support necessary for lagging footsteps.

Included in the present list are the last of the "genro", or "elder statesmen", Prince Kinmochi Saionji, now 84, and the empire's hero of heroes, Admiral of the Fleet Count Heihachiro Togo, victor of the battle of the Sea of Japan in 1905, recently turned 85.

There also are three former premiers, Prince Saionji, Admiral Count Gobei Yamamoto and Count Keigo Kiyoura. Others are Baron Yusaburo Kuratomi, president of the privy council; Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, Viscount Chuchoku Ishiguro and Baron Yuzuru Kubota, privy councilor; General Naomichi Asano, 90 years old; Count Koken Tanaka, Viscount Yujun Saga and Baron Sadami Ando.

The three "recruits" are all octogenerians, Baron Kimitake Furuichi, privy councilor; General Naomichi Oseko, and Count Ujitomo Toda.

Prince Kinmochi Saionji, 84, last of the "genro", the elder statesmen of Japan, is one of the illustrious 15 permitted to carry canes or staves in the presence of the emperor.

Madrid (AP)—Deep in the prim rows of figures in Madrid's city budget one finds this:

"For the upkeep of the five cats of the city record rooms, 300 pesetas."

For this $30 a year the cats wage war on rats intent upon devouring the municipal archives. Another item:

"For rent of the Retiro, 5 centimos of 1 peseta."

The Retiro is Madrid's great park. It belongs to the federal state, but was rented to the city for about two cents a year so that title rights might be preserved.

DANES CUT BIBLE PAGES INTO CIGARETTE PAPERS

Copenhagen, (AP).—English Bibles are best-sellers here because Danes are cutting up the thin-leaved editions to use for cigarette papers. They get four to a page.

No irreverence is intended, investigators report.

The Danish government helps the "tailor-made" cigarette industry by levying a tax of 50 cents on each package of 100 cigarette papers.

This makes "rollings" so costly that a Bible printed on India paper is cheaper, even when imported from England.

New Antiseptic Cuts Gargling Costs In Half!

Five Million Trial Bottles of Vicks Antiseptic Furnish Proof of Its Quality—and Its Amazing Economy!

GUARANTEED BY DRUGGISTS

The makers of Vicks VapoRub have produced an antiseptic which does everything that a gargle or mouth-wash can and should do—at half the usual price of other quality antiseptics. The name of this new product is Vicks Voratone Antiseptic.

Of course, the only real proof of its quality and amazing economy is actual use. To furnish this proof, Vicks Chemists supplied to druggists—at less than cost—5 million special trial bottles—a 25c value for 10c. These trial bottles have gone so quickly that this offer is now made:

If your druggist's supply of the trial size is exhausted, get one of the 10c bottles. Use it a week. Then, if you are not delighted with its quality and amazing economy, your money will be refunded.

Mild Enough, Strong Enough

No extravagant claims are made for Vicks Voratone. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce—and they were aided by the chemists, bacteriologists and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations here and in Europe.

They created a balanced antiseptic—mild enough to be used day in and day out without risk to delicate membranes; yet strong enough to do everything that an oral antiseptic can and should do.

For All Customary Uses

You can use Vicks Antiseptic, in your customary way, for bad breath (halitosis); as a gargle; as a mouth-wash; as an antiseptic lotion; and for all the other customary uses.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional unique advantage . . . born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly—saving you half!

BOY SCOUT RALLY IN CATSKILL SATERDAY.

Scout Executive Wright reports that there is much interest and enthusiasm among the Scouts of Greene county in their rally to be held at Catskill Saturday evening. There are 231 Scouts in Greene county, in 11 troops. Every troop has signified its intention to be present at the rally and take part in the contests and demonstrations. Mr. Wright says he expects to see an attendance of at least 200 Scouts Saturday evening and will not be greatly surprised if the attendance reaches close to 100 per cent.

The Catskill armory will be the scene of the rally and while there are not accommodations that were furnished by the new armory at Kingston for the Ulster county rally, all the contests held at Kingston will be given Saturday night with the exception of two—string burning and water boiling. There will also be a court of honor, with over 100 awards listed. Professor Joseph Schnitzer, of the Catskill schools, will preside over the court.

A number of Kingston Scouts have signified their intention to attend the rally.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, suffer from head noises, due to catarrh or fear catarrhal deafness, you should know of the internal medicine which has already brought blessed relief to thousands of catarrh sufferers.

Secure from McBride Drug Stores or your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add ½ pint hot water and a little sugar.

One tablespoonful four times a day should bring quick relief from distressing catarrhal head noises, clogged nostrils, difficult breathing and dropping mucous. All threatened with catarrhal deafness need simple, effective Parmint.

Women's Federation Executive Meeting

The February meeting of the executive committee of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs was held in the City Library on Thursday afternoon, when considerable business was transacted.

Mrs. Walker, the president, in speaking of the Federation annual luncheon, voiced the feeling of all members of the Executive Committee, when she expressed their appreciation of and thanks for the pleasing one-act play which the Atharhacton Club had given as the entertainment feature of the luncheon.

In the absence of Dr. Mary Gage-Day, chairman of the public health committee, Miss Healy reported for her, relative to the recent Christmas Seal sale, that there were still 2,400 letters that had never been acknowledged which was 1,000 more than reported at the same time last year. One set of follow-up letters have been sent out and a second call is about to go out. The mailing of all of these letters take from the profits of the sale which goes toward The Camp Happyland and TB visiting nurse funds.

There was a short report from the Good Government Committee which included an appreciative account of the last Common Council meeting, particularly Alderman Doherty's suggestion as to securing new industries for our city, even at a loss of taxes from them for five or ten years, in order to afford additional employment. All club representatives were asked to send to Mrs. C. N. Read, the name or names of their respective clubs which had been appointed to attend Common Council meetings.

A report from Mrs. Fred Luther, chairman of the Moving Picture Committee, including a list of worthwhile motion pictures, was received.

Miss Healy, chairman of the Individual Membership of the Federation, reported the presentation of four names of prospective members, all of whom were unanimously elected to membership. Mrs. Edmund Rockford, Mrs. John McNeils, Mrs. R. Wilson Norwood, Miss Louise Cockburn.

The only club report to be given was that of Sorosis, announcing that that club would be the hostess club at the March open meeting of the Federation the third Saturday in March, the speaker and place of meeting to be later announced.

The executive committee then heard from Arling Aldine, who has directed and managed his own theatres in Washington, D. C., the Municipal Theatre in Northampton, Mass., three seasons in Cleveland, etc. Mr. Aldine is himself a player and was this season with the Theatre Guild's "The Faithful Heart" and Mr. Aldine's offer was one that made his last appearance in "Chrysalis."

He came before the women to offer a high class production of fine light comedy, bringing to its presentation four well-known Broadway players, whom he assured the committee were not only fine players but people of fine character.

The play he had in mind to offer was "There's Always Juliet," said to be the most successful New York stage play of the season. According to the critics this delightful, sparkling play had headed the list of light comedy presentations a decade replete full of romantic charm and joyous sparkling dialogue.

The cast would include the following four players, all of whom have been very favorably received in New York theatre circles: Miss Flora Gade, Mrs. Edith Barcourt, Charles Grigler and Ivy Hanson.

It was promised to give the play in Kingston this season with very reasonable admission charges, the

TRAINING FOR NEW JOBS

A human way to attack one of the problems of the machine age is being tried by the Employment Research Institute of the University of Minnesota. Thoughtful persons who admit that specific machines throw workers out of specific jobs usually maintain that the machine at the same time creates more new jobs than it kills. The problem lies in getting the workers transferred from the jobs with which they have been familiar into the new ones created by machinery. The Minnesota plan, as the Institute's program is called, has two aims—to find jobs for the unemployed and also to discover in individuals their own unrealized talents, thus broadening their opportunities for work.

"Vocational classification and job labels tend to create an American caste system which is holding hundreds of thousands of timid individuals in a tragic bondage," says Dr. M. P. Trabue, who has been connected with the work in Minnesota. Once a clerk, or a button maker, or a steel worker, always that, has been the rule for the many. Only a few have been able to break through into new fields of work and new interests when they have lost the jobs to which they have been trained.

If machinery had developed slowly in recent years, the problem might have been taken care of naturally as it has always been in the past. However, it developed swiftly, throwing out workers in large groups, and there was no thought or means ready to help them readjust themselves to the changed situation.

SIMPLE SONGS

Says Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, who has a Ph. D. in music and a lot of highbrow knowledge on the subject, "the only way to write a really popular song is to put one's self first in the state of mind of a less than average person, with a less than average vocabulary, range of thought, experience and sense for grammar."

Many novelists and short story writers of considerable skill in their own fields are now trying to make some money by writing popular songs. They are not likely to succeed, says Dr. Spaeth, until they can "forget education and the self-consciousness that usually goes with it." He calls absolute simplicity of words and music essential to popularity. That simplicity makes it possible for everyone to learn the songs easily, particularly to catch a phrase or chorus which can be sung comfortably even if the rest of the song is merely hummed.

Dr. Spaeth ought to know what he is talking about. He has compiled several collections of popular songs, old-timers as well as more recent ones. Apparently he considers it no disgrace either to write such songs or to enjoy them once they are written. They are ballads, and have their place in life.

"MAKE EUROPE PAY."

After a little spell of leniency toward our foreign debtors, it is reported that the sentiment of Congress is hardening again. One correspondent says: "Such a nationalistic fervor has been worked up that no cancellationist dares raise his head. Indeed, most have gone over to the other side. Public reaction to recent developments has been such that all politicians who desire to save their own skins are convinced that the only worth-while policy for them is 'Make Europe Pay.'" All right. Make Europe pay. Those congressmen's constituents at home will appreciate it, and may re-elect them, if they succeed. But their chance of re-election on that ground is not very bright. "Collecting every dollar from Europe" isn't so good a slogan as it used to be.

Most of the debtors have already defaulted. The others have announced that they will pay no more unless there is drastic downward revision. It is the duty of Congress, as of the President, to salvage what they can, and to make no big concessions without seeking corresponding benefits from the debtors. But Congressmen might as well face facts, as the public has begun to do, and realize that, things being as they are, anything we can save from the wreckage of that financial adventure, is so much to the good. Also that reasonable revision will doubtless help American business by helping European business.

HAPPINESS UNDER HITLER.

Adolf Hitler, new Fascist chancellor of Germany, aiming at dictatorship, stops shouting and roaring long enough to assure the nation that if he does become dictator as a result of the March 5 election it will only be because he wants to create "a happier, nobler and freer Germany."

Then, we suppose, of course he will quit preaching political and racial hatred, grow wings and announce an era of peace and good will. He will stop persecuting the Jews. He will change his mind about "heads rolling in the dust." He will try to get Germans to work together for their common good, and will lead rather than drive. Certainly there is little hope for Germany, or for any other nation, in the present plight of the world, unless it has cooperation and mutual trust, under enlightened leadership.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

THE CROWDED ROOM

As students we were taught that each person in a school room needed 1000 cubic feet of air space, and that the air in the room should be changed three times an hour.

We were taught also that the carbon dioxide that was breathed out of the lungs was injurious, and that the "organic particles" breathed out were very dangerous and were responsible for the headaches and tired feeling which occurred due to remaining in an unventilated room.

A few years ago it was shown that ventilation is not a matter of so much space for each individual, but that if the air in the room is kept moving then the amount of space for each person is not important.

It was found also that it is not the carbon dioxide, nor the waste organic particles from the lungs that cause headaches and tiredness, but the increased amount of moisture in the room. The water vapor in the air from the lungs accumulates to such an extent in the room, that the body can't regulate properly the amount of heat it needs to throw off, hence the feeling of stuffiness.

In the home, as a rule, particularly in the cool weather, there is really not enough moisture in the air, because the outside cool air has less moisture in it anyway, and then when it gets heated in the home it has even less.

However, in schools, churches, theatres, or other places where there are a large number of people congregated, so much moisture is breathed out from the lungs, that ventilation or movement of the air is absolutely necessary if headaches, stuffiness, and tiredness are to be prevents.

If the individual is in a crowded place regularly, it can gradually affect his general health causing particularly ailments of the nose, throat and chest—colds, influenza, pneumonia, and some of the diseases of childhood.

While the opening of windows and thus creating a current of air is helpful, this is not always possible.

It has been amply proven, however, that the use of an electric fan by churning the air will create the movement necessary to remove that sense of oppression caused by overcrowding.

SYNOPSIS: Major Stephen Riccoli of the Foreign Legion, and head of plans to evacuate his garrison, makes a treasonable agreement with the powerful Kaid of Mekazzen. Years before the secret service had "used Sarah Lee" and forced him out of the Legion regulars. Now the man who came to the mess from the Kaid through apparently an Arab, is in possession of a password that identifies him as a colonel of the secret service by John Bellamy, English gentleman enlisted in the Legion. Bombelli, orderly to Riccoli, is apparently known to the Arab as "Lanzarote"—and Bombelli deserts immediately after the Arab leaves. Riccoli discusses plans with his enemy Vittorelli.

Chapter II

"HOW SHOULD I FAIL?"

"We shall really burn our boats behind us by doing that," mused Sergeant-Major Vittorelli, still perhaps a little doubtfully, as he stood before Major Riccoli, the same day, in the hut used by the latter when he visited the post.

"We shall. Are you afraid, Vittorelli? You—a Corsican?"

"I am afraid of nothing, mon Commandant," replied Vittorelli, with more truth than modesty. "But it would break my heart if you failed."

"Fail! I? I am a Man of Destiny, and how should I fail? Once inside the citadel, everything will be easy. Getting inside has been the difficulty—for the last thousand years. Nature has made the place impregnable, and man has improved on Nature's handiwork . . . And we are going to march in unopposed. Not merely unopposed either—but actually invited."

"A spider's web, mon Commandant?"

"Well? Are we flies? Or are we wasps, hornets?"

"And the men, mon Commandant?" ventured Vittorelli, who though ignorant, rash, egotistical and impetuous, as well as being the fantastically devoted and admiring disciple of Riccoli, was sane and possessed of a shrewd peasant mother-wit and common sense. "Can we be certain that all the N.C.O.'s, corporals and légionnaires will be amenable, obedient?"

"It will be a bad day for anyone who is not, Vittorelli," smiled Riccoli.

"It would be a bad day for us, mon Commandant — the day on which some of them, even a minority of them, decided to remain—er—true to their—er. . ."

"Decided not to throw in their lot with mine and seize their glorious chance, the chance of rising from slavery to power, position, wealth? Only fools, clods, cowards, weaklings . . ."

"There are such people, mon Commandant."

"Yes—as Captain Voulet discovered when he tried to found his Empire of the Sahara in 1897. But he was mad, of course. Hopelessly mad. A megalomaniac. And then he had a partner, too, Captain Chanoine, who failed him. That was where Voulet went wrong—one of his mistakes, anyhow.

"And we can learn something from the mistakes of Voulet. And then again he was dealing with stupid unambitious officers, and was compelled to show his hand too soon. Bad luck and bad management ruined his scheme; and part of his bad luck that he had no inaccessible impregnable base from which to operate. He simply went out into the blue—out into the desert—and you cannot found an Empire on sand, and direct it from under a palm tree.

"Here we shall have for our base and the heart of our empire—a citadel, a city, and a country that has never been conquered.

"Yes, Captain Voulet was both unlucky and a fool. I am a man of destiny and not a fool. Fate has led me here to the very spot, and created the very circumstances necessary for the fulfilment of that destiny."

"Without doubt, mon Commandant. But the men? It seems to me that success will depend upon one of two things: on the one hand whether the légionnaires are kept in ignorance long enough; or, on the other hand, whether they can be won over to—er—abandon their old allegiance and follow you."

"Of course, mon enfant. I know all about that: I intend, first of all, to get them inside the Citadel. They'll simply obey orders and carry on, in the ordinary course of duty, till the moment comes for seizing the place. The garrison of this post will march as escort with me across the Mekazzen country to Mekazzen, and into the Citadel. All they will know or care—if they know or care anything at all—is that their Commandant is on a diplomatic mission to parley with the Kaid.

"When the time, and my plans, are ripe for the seizing of the Citadel, they will simply obey orders!

"When I am master of Mekazzen, and have garrisoned it with the rest of my command, will be the time to find out who is for me, and to make it clear that he who is not for me is against me. Also the exact fate of him who is against me."

"And the other detachments, mon Commandant? When will they arrive?"

"When I send for them. When I have completely won the confidence of the Kaid, so that he believes that they are marching to join his banner under my command."

"Why not assemble the whole column before marching from here, mon Commandant?" asked Vittorelli, eager, hopeful, but not yet wholly convinced.

"Ah, why not, indeed, mon enfant? Because the Kaid will not hear of it. If I cross the border with one man more than the garrison of this post, it is war. We shall be surrounded, cut off, ambushed and annihilated in one of the defiles. My first proposal was to march in, bag and baggage, horse, foot, and guns—and that was the Kaid's answer through the mouth of his own son who visited me at Post Three.

"That young man, Prince Raisul (a clever lad, by the way, who speaks English, French and Spanish as well as I do), made it clear that we should all be welcome—and the more the merrier—but we must come in small detachments and on different days.

"Treacherous swine, these Arabs," he added. "They trust nobody."

"So having marched into the place, we mark time until the other detachments arrive," mused Vittorelli. "H'm! What about treachery? We shall have to sleep with our eyes open."

"You are right, my friend. Until the Kaid sleeps with his eyes shut, once and for all. But don't you see the prettiness of my plan? If the Kaid intends treachery, and would capture the whole column—for its rifles, ammunition and kit, guns, horses, stores and cash—and such of the men as would join him to escape torture and death—he's got to wait until I send for the other detachments, I shall have in Mekazzen a force quite big enough to do our business, and settle his hash. Though what I hope and intend to do is to seize the Citadel before I send for the other detachments.

"Then I can present an accomplished fact to the Sergeant-Majors and Sergeants, and to the N.C.O.'s of the native troops as well as to les légionnaires, when I have to show my hand."

Silence fell between the two men.

"Our rascals here can think they are seizing the Castle for France, of course," observed Vittorelli at length.

"They can think what they like, as I said before," replied Riccoli sharply. "Think what they like and do what they're told. Though that is where you will be most useful, mon enfant. Sounding them: talking them over: showing them what they have to gain on the one hand and what to lose on the other—their lives: separating the sheep from the goats: forming a group of those upon whose personal loyalty I can absolutely rely."

"H'm! . . . I can pretty well do that now, mon Commandant. Our good Corsicans, whom you so wisely selected, will be trustworthy; and I can answer for the Italians. I've no doubt the Germans will be all right, and more willing to fight against France than for her. I can get the Russians over, I expect; and, I think, the Spaniards and the Belgians . . . Where we shall have trouble will be with two French grognards, two silly old fools with about a hundred years' service between them, and four Englishmen—stubborn mulish creatures, who can only entertain one idea at a time. Yes, we shall have trouble with them."

"On the contrary, my dear Sergeant-Major," replied Major Napoleon Riccoli, as he rose to his feet. "It is they who will have trouble with us."

Bugles! . . .

The stirring notes of the rousing call have such an effect upon the post, as does the fall of a great rock into the quiet tarn.

To the légionnaires it is the signal for departure, and man, particularly the type of man who chooses the profession of soldiering, loves departure.

"Here we are, thank God," says he upon arrival.

"Let's go somewhere else," he soon adds.

The strawberry cactus of southwestern America bears a brownish-red berry which tastes very much like the true strawberry. Under favorable conditions the cacti form closely packed beds a yard or more across, generously sprinkled at blossom time with brilliant blooms varying in color from bright red to deep purple.

Like most cacti, the strawberry cactus has sharp spines, growing even on the fruit. These are loosely joined, however, and can be brushed off with little trouble.

Stilt-walking, the almost universal boyhood pastime, is the profession of Hi-Jack Redmond, Hollywood, Cal., who makes his living wandering around on six-foot stilts. No novice in the stilt-walking business, Redmond just a few months ago completed his 55,000th mile. He has been at it for 31 years.

His longest day on stilts was 15 hours and 40 minutes. He covered 51 miles during the hike. As this was written Redmond was laying plans for a stilt-walking trip from Hollywood to New York and return—all in 100 hours.

10 BIGGEST PROBLEMS

No. 9

Getting More Of the Good Things Of Life

This is the ninth of a series of articles in which Prof. William Fielding Ogburn of the University of Chicago discusses what he considers the 10 biggest problems facing America.

By WILLIAM FIELDING OGBURN
Research Director, President's Committee On Recent Social Trends
(Written For The Associated Press)

The problem with regard to the standard of living in the next few years will be to prevent it from being lowered.

We probably shall be slow in coming out of the present depression. It may take from one to three or four years in which case the economic forces will be driving down the living standards. It has taken a long time to bring them to the present level.

For 10 or 15 years following the opening of the century the change in the standard of life was very slow for the wage earners. It moved up more rapidly during the war period and thereafter. It would certainly be a loss to mankind if the gains of a part of a century should be lost in the few years of the present depression.

Sharing Jobs a Necessity.

A plan for sharing work by those who have jobs with those who have none is a necessary measure for meeting the terrible ravages of the present unemployment, but it should not be allowed to serve as a device for keeping the incomes down after the depression is over.

For those out of work the standard of living already has fallen precipitously. The aim here should be to maintain a minimum standard of living.

During the next few years the problem will be particularly acute for the hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions of unemployed who are very near the retiring age and never will be employed again.

Problem For Young People.

It is also serious for the young people who have been out of high school three, four, or five years and have been given no opportunity to form habits of thrift, skill and ambition because of lack of employment.

When the present crisis is past, but let us hope not forgot, the great task will be to raise the standard of living.

Many times in history the fight for more of the good things of life has led to revolution and appropriation of land and property from those who have by those who have not.

"Redistributing Wealth One Way."

The simplest way of raising the standard of living seems to be to redistribute wealth. This has been the constant theme of radicals, but now a new program has arisen showing that by increasing production and distribution the standard of living will also be raised.

If all of the wealth of the world were divided equally among everyone, the rise in the standard of living would only be slight and perhaps temporary, but if an economic organization can be worked out so that more goods are produced and distributed, the standard of living may be increased more effectively.

The present depression has thrown a new light on this problem for now we have plenty of production and bulging warehouses, but a lowered standard of living and hungry men.

The problem is to work out an economic organization so the capacity of purchase will flow along at the same rate as the capacity to produce. If this problem can be solved the danger of regression to the standards of misery of earlier times will be removed and prospects of a much higher standard of living will be in sight.

Favorable Factors Cited.

There are a number of favorable factors. One is the fact that we have prohibited immigration and our population is increasing much more slowly than it was. If we have fewer people among whom to divide the gains, each will get more.

The second favorable factor is that our natural resources will be plentiful for at least a decade and probably for a much longer time.

The third favorable factor is invention and technological development, which gives every prospect of yielding a greater and greater production of wealth. With these three factors favorable if the economic organization can be made to function better, it ought to be possible to contemplate within the lives of perhaps many of the readers a much higher standard of living for most of our countrymen—far above the poverty level.

Other Problems Stand Out.

Two other problems should be mentioned. One is to try to raise the standard of living in those few regions less favorably situated as, for instance, in outlying towns and villages, and among the sub-marginal farms. The second problem deals with a certain percentage of mankind who still will remain the victims of accident and circumstances. For these more in the way of provision of social insurance against disease, unemployment and old age will be needed.

On the whole the outlook is very dark for the next few years and will demand the intelligent application of all of the forces of society, but in the long run the prospect is bright for a world without poverty.

TOMORROW: "Happiness — A Public Policy." The most cherished desire of many is happiness, says Professor Ogburn, although little is known about that elusive state of being. Solving the problems of family relationship is the most important step toward happiness, he asserts. The development of a widespread program of mental hygiene also will help bring people closer to this will o' the wisp, he says in his last article tomorrow.

A PARADOX—POVERTY IN THE MIDST OF PLENTY

Keeping up the standard of living is one of America's 10 biggest problems, says Prof. William Fielding Ogburn. One way to help do it is by working out an economic organization that will increase the capacity to purchase along with the capacity to produce, he says, citing how America has bulging stores of food such as those above while long lines of unemployed go hungry and their standard of living is reduced.

K. of C. to Hold Chapter Meeting

On Sunday, February 12, at 2:30 p. m., the Hudson Valley Chapter, Knights of Columbus, will convene in their regular meeting at Wappingers Falls, in the council rooms of Wappingers Council, No. 1646. Membership of the chapter is made up of councils in the Hudson valley section.

The chairman of the New York Chapter, John J. Moroney, will be present at this meeting and will deliver an address. Mr. Moroney is very active in community and municipal life in Greater New York. He is assistant corporation counsel; president of the Throggs Neck Property Owner and Welfare Association; librarian and director of the Bronx Taxpayers' Alliance; chairman of the executive board of the East Bronx Allied Associations; member of the Democratic speakers' committee; and has just been elected president of the Chippewa Democratic Club of the 7th A. D.

Reports from the officers of the chapter indicate that there will be an unusually large attendance at this meeting.

Rural Church Services.

"A song that will never die" will be the theme of the Rev. Thomas S. Braithwaite next Sunday in the Krumville and Lyonsville churches at 11 o'clock and 2:15. The Young People's Community Club gave a fine program at the patriotic service in the church on Lincoln's Birthday.

P.-T. A. No. 4.

The P.-T. A. of School No. 4, combined its February meeting with a Founders' Day celebration on Tuesday evening.

The meeting opened with the singing of a P.-T. A. song "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Children Marching."

Donations of sugar and cocoa were asked for to make cocoa for the lunch pupils each day and it was decided to hold a card party on Tuesday, February 28, for the benefit of the milk fund.

A charming little two-act play of Civil War days entitled, "Marching On", was given by several pupils after which the president, Mrs. J. H. Donovan, presented Mrs. W. R. Anderson who gave the Founders' Day address.

At the close of the address, 14 members who were arranged in a semi-circle around a large, artistically decorated birthday cake, took part in a candle lighting ceremony which had been arranged by Mrs. Anderson, ending with the singing of "The New York State Mother's Song."

A collection for state and national extension work was taken, after which ice cream and cake were served.

The address given by Mrs. Anderson follows in part:

Again we turn our minds and hearts to the anniversary of the birth of our National Congress of Parents and Teachers and to our two founders, Mrs. Theodore W. Birney and Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, who on February 17, 36 years ago, out of their love for little children, called together the mothers of our nation to found this organization of which our Kingston units are branches.

Mrs. S. M. Marrs, a past president of the national, at a Founders' Day dinner held in Washington, D. C., remarked that "Every day throughout the year, members of our P.-T. A. pay unconscious tribute to their founders. Every effort of every member towards a better knowledge of children and more intelligent care of them, manifests their spirit and pays tribute to those pioneers who resolved to make themselves more worthy parents and to bring all children into their rightful heritage, a well rounded education.

Mrs. Birney, who before her marriage was Alice McClellan of Marietta, Georgia, was a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College. Her first husband, Alonzo White, died shortly before the birth of their little daughter. She later married Theodore W. Birney, a prominent lawyer of Washington, D. C., and had two other daughters.

Someone has said that the woman who takes into her heart her own children may be a very ordinary mother, but she who opens her heart to the children of others, she is one of God's own mothers. Such was Mrs. Birney. From a child she sought to protect the weak and helpless. As she grew older and had children this spirit developed into a desire to help all childhood. She had a vision of what organized, intelligent motherhood might accomplish the world over.

She consulted with her friend, Mrs. Hearst, wife of Senator Hearst, of California, who was also a great lover of children. She had established and supported several kindergartens, also clubs and training classes for working girls. Together they planned to call a congress of mothers to meet at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C., on February 17, 1897. Mrs. Hearst financed this conference and for the next four years generously provided funds to carry on the work.

Mrs. Birney called upon Mrs. Grover Cleveland, enlisted her support and Mrs. Cleveland gave a reception to the delegates at the White House. The interest and help of the wives of many prominent members of Cleveland's cabinet were also secured.

When the day for the convening of this three day's conference arrived, in response to the call sent out by Mrs. Birney, men and women, prominent as educators, philanthropists, religious and social leaders, as well as fathers and mothers from the more humble walks of life, gathered from the north, south, east and west, and filled the auditorium. All were drawn by the one common interest, child welfare. As Mrs. Birney expressed it in her address of welcome: "The love of childhood is the tie which unites us all in holiest purpose."

A National Congress of Mothers was organized at this time, with Mrs. Birney as president, serving for five years. The July following this organization Mrs. Birney lost her husband and for ten years she made a brave effort to forget her grief, in noble, sympathetic work for others. She died December 20, 1907, leaving her work in the hands of the parents and teachers of our country.

In San Diego, Cal., the new State Collegiate School has been named the Alice McClellan Birney School, and in 1930, the Phoebe A. Hearst School was dedicated in Washington, D. C. It seems fitting that the Hearst school should be in Mrs. Birney's home city and that the Birney school in Mrs. Hearst's home state.

A large New York state delegation met at the close of this conference to plan a New York state organization which they formed the following fall. Preliminary meetings were held at the home of Mrs. Edward Tuttle in New York city, and she formed the New York City Mothers' Club before the state was organized. "Grandma" Tuttle died a few years ago at the age of 91, being in active P.-T. A. work up to the last.

Another woman to whom our state organization largely owes its existence is Mrs. Fannie J. Bailey of Albany, who on January 22 celebrated her 101 birthday. She was the guest of honor at the banquet of the state convention held in Albany last fall, dressed all in white, her only ornament a single rose. Last year the Albany Mothers' Club, of which she was the founder, gave her a birthday luncheon. Among the 300 guests present was Governor Lehman.

"Grandma" Bailey is in good health and remarked at her luncheon that she had an engagement for every day that week and expected to keep them all. In her younger days she helped form a number of state branches, as well as P.-T. A.'s in our own state.

Another greatly loved pioneer is Mrs. David O. Mears, our second state president, serving for seven years. She was also a national vice president, and it was she, who in 1910, first conceived the idea of celebrating Founder's Day. She has served ever since as national Founder's Day chairman, though now that she is getting on in years, a vice chairman does most of the work. She was present last year at the convention of the National held at Hot Springs, Arkansas, where an oak tree was planted in her honor, in National Park. A beautiful little poem, written for the occasion, was recited to her.

The Parent-Teacher organization is the only nation-wide agency devoted entirely to child welfare. It has organizations in each of our 48 states, District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii. Branches have been formed in Canada, Japan, India, the Bahamas, South America and South Africa. We are happy to make our Founder's Day gift each year and to feel that we have a small part in this work. The slogan of New York State is "A P.-T. A. in every school and every parent a member."

OUR DAILY PATTERN

A Stylish Frock

7677. Printed crepe is here combined with plain crepe satin. Velvet with woolen for contrast or woolen with velvet is also suggested. The new broadcloths are very appropriate for this model. It features the skirt placed high on the waist, which is trimmed with wide revers, and has surplice lines. An insert slightly flared makes a graceful division in the straight line of the skirt. A new and interesting sleeve treatment is shown. A shaped puff is arranged on the fitted sleeve portion. This puff may be omitted. A wide belt trims the back of the dress.

Designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 38 will require 3¾ yards of printed or other material, and ⅞ yard of plain or contrasting material 39 inches wide, if made as in the large view. If made without contrast, it will require 4½ yards. If made without the puff and without contrast 4⅛ yards will be required. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fulness extended is 1¾ yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

SAILORS WITH FLAT CROWNS FOR SPRING

Return of Vogue for Brims Seen in New Hats.

Trim flat-crowned sailors stamped with the mark of chic are being exhibited in the smartest modistes' salons in Paris as the first word in 1933 spring headgear.

Lines of the new hats, which predict a return of the vogue for brims, are sleek and unmarred by extraneous quirks. Brims are fairly narrow, although wider ones are promised for later wear, and crowns are as flat as they can be to accommodate the new close coiffures now in vogue.

Trims generally appear in front or back rather than on the side. They are simple and gay, with colorful fantasies of straw, strings, transparent fichue, suede, nicel and galalith more often used than flowers.

Colors include brisk, bright greens, as leaf and apple, beige, honey yellow, bright reds, dark blues and blacks, while the straws may be either rough and rustic, or fine and smooth.

A new straw called "yedda" made in a variety of rough weaves is an outstanding material, while Bengals and linen straws are also seen.

Lingerie Types in Hand-Knitted Sweaters

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild.

At top is a short-sleeved hand-knitted sweater in lacy white stitch, with white braid laced through the encrusted bretelles. The center sweater is of light blue, fine yarn, in ajour pattern, with tuckings at front and on the sleeves.

Below is a model in light blue, rather lacy stitch in fine yarn, trimmed with dark blue closely knitted bands.

The Separate Skirt—Or Two-Skirt Suit

New York—The vogue for sweaters, blouses and separate jackets, necessitates a supply of skirts with which to wear these things. The suit may be completed by either a sweater or a blouse. Some of the new, formalized sweater are dressy enough to complete any spring suit costume. The turtle neck, once confined to sports, is seen about town, and not only on sweaters, but on blouses and even frocks. So is the crew or rounded neckline.

Sweaters have adopted various blouse ideas. Blouses have borrowed very freely from sweaters. The hand-knitted sweater still reigns. Silk sweaters are becoming popular, particularly with suits to be worn around town. Lacy and various drop stitch effects are the trends for both silk and wool sweaters. While there are some two tone effects, the preference seems to be for plain sweaters, contrasting however, with the skirt.

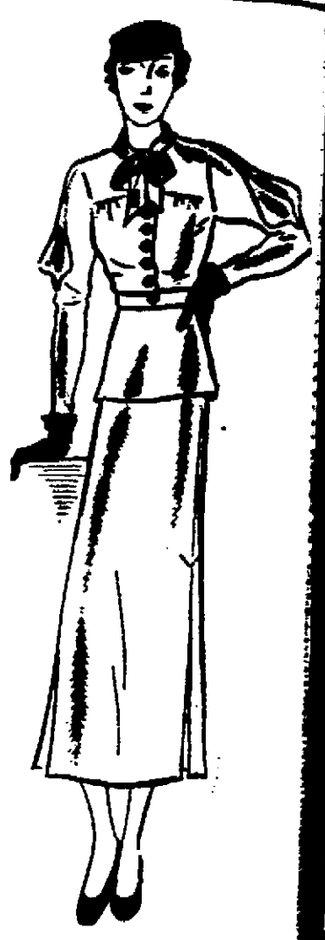
That sweaters as well as blouses have full sleeves is a statement easily proven. The sleeve and yoke cut in one remains a favorite. It is most popular when the material contains a diagonal stripe design.

Women seem to realize the flattering possibilities of the bowed neckline. The bow is sometimes a detachable affair, a sort of necktie which may be changed at will, or again the collar is cut so that its ends may be bowed. The scales dip however in favor of detachable things, this being equally true of fur collars on spring coats.

The idea of selling suits with two skirts is of course borrowed from the man's suit with two pairs of trousers. It's a most practical idea providing one with a skirt which may be worn not only with shirtwaists and sweaters but with a contrasting jacket, a perfectly permissible suit arrangement.

The amusing fashion of wearing a cardigan back to front has already been mentioned. It is just another phase of the back buttoned blouse or sweater idea. The buttons usually are ornamental.

A CLEVERLY CUT PEPLUM



Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild.

The sleeves, with leaf-like fulness, the shirtwaist bodice with button detail, and the peplum that ties at the waistline at the back are interesting features of the dress illustrated. The neckline ties high and casually, and the skirt introduces pleats at the sides for fulness.

Paper Read Before Kiwanis Club

A paper covering two subjects, "The Story of the Bath," and "The Story of Fire," was read to members of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon by Joseph F. Stout, treating these two subjects in a humorous and searching fashion, which was enjoyed by those present.

President St. John introduced one new member, Assistant District Attorney N. LeVan Haver; and two guests were presented, Senator Arthur Wicks of Kingston and Earl H. Newberry of Poughkeepsie.

The musical program and singing, part of which was incorporated in the paper, was in charge of Paul Zucca with Danny Bittner at the piano.

Kiwanian Stout was introduced to his fellow members by Pearl Carey, chairman of the program committee.

Using as his slogan "A bath every day makes you fit in every way," Mr. Stout explained the many operations and advances of science which make possible this commonly accepted custom. He discussed the hardships of the Roman system of public baths, the development of running water, the invention of the water heater, the improvement of the tub and shower equipment, and such accessories as the soap dish and the like. "I believe that physical well being is related to mental well being, and that anything that improves the one aids the other," said the speaker. He continued with a discussion of the ease with which it is possible to use modern bath facilities, and how general that use has become until it is an accepted part of everyday living.

Discussing his second topic Mr. Stout said, "The story of fire is the story of civilization. It has made man the master of land, water and air, and fire was the beginning of society."

The history of fire from its discovery, its use to warm caves and to serve as a beacon for grouping of ancient man when he visited his fellow man to relate his adventures and discuss plans; through the invention of the chimney, the stove, the furnace, hot water and steam heating systems, to the present day automatic stoker and temperature regulators, was covered in detail. Mr. Stout showed that it was now possible to install a heating system that was entirely automatic, that would let the rooms cool at night for comfortable sleeping, would begin to work at an early hour so that a warm room faced the sleeper when it was time for him to dress, and that would maintain an even temperature throughout the day no matter what the weather might be.

President St. John thanked the speaker for his address and voiced the opinion of the club that the paper was of interest to all present.

The meeting closed with a song led by Clarence Schoonmaker.

ARMORED CAR UNIT ADDED TO CHILE'S FASCIST FORCE

Santiago, Chili (AP).—An armored car and tank division has been organized by the civil guard, a semi-secret fascist organization formed to succor any constitutional regime and to fight both militarism and communism.

A subsidiary "home guard" of about 3,000 men will be assigned to duty only in home districts, permitting the regular civil guard to put all its attention on combat work.

With organization here virtually complete, units in the provinces will be revamped to fit the new scheme, replacing all former leaders of the "white guard," because that body failed to support the Montero gov[illegible].

CHILE'S WORKERS OBJECT TO HIGH LIVING BY IDL[illegible]

Antofagasta, Chile, (AP).—So acute is unemployment in the northern provinces, that it is estimated that three-fourths of the population of this city lives off the government.

Correspondents of Santiago newspapers found, however, that virtually none of the unemployed would accept jobs and that some ill-feeling was present among employed workers who felt the "cesantes," or idlers were living better than they who earned their keep.

PICK A NAME—NEW GAME UNDER TURKISH REFORM ACT

Angora, Turkey (AP)—"What's your name going to be?" is the current question in Turkey.

Name choosing has become the chief parlor game of the nation since an announcement by Mustapha Kemal's minister of the interior that family names soon will be required by law.

Patronymics never have been used in Turkey and the result frequently has been chaotic.

Under the Turkish republic there was a famous case of one of the Kemalist tribunals of independence (corresponding to the Soviet chekas) in which all five judges were named Ali.

The only means of distinction now used is that of locality, such as "Hussein of Broussa," or an occasional "Mustapha, son of the bald-head," or "Mehmed, son of the hunchback." Women are not even given that much tag, but are simply Fatimas, Gulistans, and nothing more.

The word "hanim" — meaning Mrs. or Miss—which follows feminine names, gives foreigners the impression that Turkish Julia O'Gradys and colonels' ladies are indeed sisters—but it's merely a misleading title.

The patronymic law which the Angora parliament will pass this winter, will require that names must be chosen within six months.

Thousands probably will grab the Turkish counterparts of America's Lincolns, Washingtons, Vanderbilts and Astors. Kemals are already numerous.

HURLEY

Hurley, Feb. 17—The Woman's Missionary Society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Dumond. There was a good attendance. Mrs. Isaac Roosa had charge of the program. Ice cream, cake and tea were served during the social hour.

About a dozen friends and neighbors of Mrs. B. I. Osterhoudt assembled at the home of her son, Leonard Lockwood, where a birthday surprise was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood for Mrs. Osterhoudt. The evening was spent pleasantly with games and jig-saw puzzles. Delicious refreshments were served, including a birthday cake sent by her sister, Mrs. Hiller, who was unable to be present. At a late hour the guests departed, wishing Mrs. Osterhoudt many more happy birthdays.

The zero weather has enabled those who do not have electrical refrigeration to harvest ice for cooling purposes during the summer.

Otis Davis and John Ostrander are filling their ice houses.

Ronald Cameron, who has been confined to the Memorial Hospital in Albany during the past three months with a broken vertebrae, had the cast removed two weeks ago and is gaining, and hopes to get home in a few weeks.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 17. (AP).—Securities markets again brightened today, throwing off the somewhat gloomy aspect of the previous session.

Stocks responded to the senate vote on the repeal resolution with a rise in the "wet" issues, and the rest of the list generally firmed, although trading was quiet. Principal commodity markets were steady to firm, and pressure against the bond market abated.

National Distillers rose more than 2 points, and gains of a point or more appeared in Crown Cork, Owens Illinois Glass and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. The list eased off fractionally from the best prices, made in the first hour, but held most of the advance. Allied Chemical, Case, Union Pacific and Santa Fe advanced as much as a point. American Can, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Dupont, New York Central, Nash, Goodyear, South Porto Rico, American Tobacco B, Lorillard, Safeway and U. S. Steel registered fair fractional gains. Utilities were somewhat soggy, as were the oils, although Seaboard was again bid up. Corn Products eased, and Coca Cola, which usually moves against the "wet" stocks, lost a couple of points.

The weekly mercantile reviews continued to reflect encouraging business stability.

There was again some pressure against the dollar in the foreign exchange market, but important banking quarters said this undoubtedly reflected grotesque exaggerations placed by foreigners upon the political significance of the attempt upon the life of the President-elect, and some bear speculation. It was reported that there had been some foreign selling of securities in this market earlier in the week, but that it had subsided.

Surprise Anniversary

Lake Katrine, Feb. 17—A surprise anniversary party was given Mrs. William T. Hookey, Jr., of Lake Katrine on Tuesday evening, February 14. About 50 friends gathered to help celebrate this occasion. Card playing was enjoyed by most of the guests but a goodly number puzzled over a number of jigsaw puzzles, which has become quite a craze with the people in Katrine. After the games a mock wedding was arranged by some of the guests, which proved a huge surprise to all. Mrs. Hookey was whisked away and before long reappeared dressed in her own bridal veil with orange blossoms, with Mr. Hookey as the groom. Preceding them was Mrs. J. Wallace as flower girl, dressed with a lampshade as a hat and some artificial flowers; John Dederick was ring bearer and carried a white cookie with a hole in the center in a wicker basket and W. E. Christian was the parson, who was very effectively garbed with his coat on backwards and a mustache of black cork spread on his face from ear to ear. The wedding ceremony was then read, with some variations and the blushing bride and groom responded as they had done once before, 15 years ago. The bride seemed very pleased to give away her beautiful bouquet of onions to the nearest one at hand. After the wedding delicious refreshments of frankfurters and rolls, salad, cake and coffee were enjoyed by all. Mr. and Mrs. Hookey delighted all by singing a number of songs. The guests then started to depart, wishing the Hookeys many more happy anniversaries in the future.

Nephew of Pope Runs Uncle's City

COUNT FRANCO RATTI

Vatican City (AP)—The new "city manager" of the papal state is the pope's nephew, Count Franco Ratti, an engineer who serves without pay.

Under a reorganization scheme approved by the Pontiff, Count Ratti, hitherto technical director of Vatican City, also becomes head of a commission of three to direct its civil affairs.

Count Franco Ratti is 28, son of the Pope's brother, Fermo, who died in 1929. He has been a successful engineer for 14 years and in 1928 attended the international foundrymen's convention at Detroit.

In the World War he was a cavalry officer and in the charge of Tagliana his horse was killed under him.

QUILT EXHIBIT AT FIRST REFORMED CHURCH

Everyone seems to be talking and making quilts the past few years. Kingston may well be proud of its collection of patchwork and appliqued quilts, both old and new, and in order that all those who are interested in making and seeing these beautiful pieces of art may do so, Mrs. W. Dean Hays of Fair street is arranging to hold a loan exhibit this fall in the parlors of the First Reformed Church. A small entrance fee will be asked, and the proceeds will go to the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

Anyone having any bed quilts old or new, hook rugs, braided rugs, pin point, or other handmade fancy work of interest, who is willing to loan them, they will be gratefully received by the Aid Society this fall. Mrs. Hays already has the promise of over 25 handmade quilts and bedspreads of all patterns and descriptions and would like to locate the oldest quilt in Ulster county, also the one having the greatest number of blocks in it.

If there are those who have quilts or other fancy articles to sell, the Aid Society will try to sell them, retaining a small commission.

No articles will be accepted until the time set for the exhibit, but Mrs. Hays will be glad to receive the names of those exhibiting and the number of articles to be loaned. Anyone in Ulster county is eligible to exhibit.

The device is operated by a photo-electric cell and switches automatically to the two words appropriate for each case.

SEE VICTORY FOR HITLERITES AS STEP TOWARD RESTORATION

Would Ex-Kaiser Return? Germany Thinks It Likely

Germans who favor a return of the monarchy are watching closely the campaign that is being waged prior to the March 5 parliamentary election, for they think a victory for Adolf Hitler and his allies would strengthen their cause. It is a common belief that former Kaiser Wilhelm would leave exile at Doorn and return to Germany if summoned, even though the summons were limited to residence only. He is shown above in three main stages of his life.

Berlin (AP).—Monarchists of Germany, the two dozen former royal riers and those who still cling to at system of government as ideal, e at the listening posts.

Their ears are cocked for sounds om the parliamentary election mpaign trenches in the hope that istory in the campaign will perch on the allied banners of Adolf tler's nazis, Alfred Hugenberg's tionalists and Frank Seldte's steel lmets.

A new reichstag under control of coalition of these elements would rten the enemies of the republin system.

Bad Luck Hits Republic.

The Weimar republic has not ared in luck in the 14 years of its istence. Fate has dealt it several st" hands, culminating in the eral depression that has made Germans who honestly wanted ve the republic a chance, think at the old times were more comrtable.

And what, after all, they ask, is difference between "authoritan" government and "kaiserism?"

Dr. Friedrich Everling, noted narchist advocate, recently replyto a pointed question, said:

a popular secret vote were en today, there would be a majity for a monarchy."

Rud Philipp Scheidemann, prosmier of the republic in 1918, ked by a French correspondent if thought there were many Gers prepared to give their lives to ure a restoration of the monrchy, replied: "I doubt it very ch."

Boom messages repeat from time time that the former emperor n't come back until his people k him." But despite denials from ious sources that the call is awaited, it is a common belief that he would answer it even though the summons might be limited to a place of residence in Germany.

Monarchist Groups Organize.

Recently nine monarchist groups formed what they called "a working alliance." The list included Everling's "League of the Upright," the "Black-White-Red Banner," the Society for the Propagation of the Hohenzollern Idea," and other organizations. Their joint program says:

"The more we see government by party in Germany being displaced by the 'authoritarian' idea, the more it becomes plain that law and order in the reich and its states can be firmly established only on the basis of a restored hereditary monarchy."

Talk of Restored Throne Grows.

Plans about the ex-crown prince becoming regent, preparatory to one of his sons, probably the eldest, 26-year old Wilhelm Frederick, occupying a restored imperial throne, were mentioned in all seriousness by the socialist Vorwaerts and other papers.

The reports were met by a prompt official denial. But quite a section of the public considers some such arrangement at least a possibility, even if it is not immediately probable.

As for the other ex-rulers, they are taking their cues from the Hohenzollerns, sitting tight and awaiting "the call."

In Bavaria, Crown Prince Rupprecht, the hope of the legitimists, omits no opportunity to show himself in dress uniform at patriotic reunions, and is widely popular.

In Wuerttemberg, the pretender, Duke Albrecht, resides conveniently near Stuttgart, living comfortably on revenue from real estate in that capital and 316,000 acres of farm land.

Crown Prince George, eldest son of the late King of Saxony, became a Jesuit priest and is out of the running. His brother, Friedrich Christian, has not the personal contact with the people for which his blunt father, who abdicated by telephone, was famous.

Says Dignity Not Upheld.

In Baden, Margrave Berthold, son of the last heir, the "Socialist Prince," Max, last imperial chancellor, wrote in an English paper not long ago that although he was not a nazi, he thought many features of the republican regime were not consistent with national dignity.

The grand duke of Hesse and the duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha are "good mixers" and enjoy considerable popularity. The latter, Charles Edward, recently married his daughter, Sybille, to the son of the Swedish crown prince. He is said to be aspiring to become "grand duke of all Thuringian states."

Repealers Edge Out The Liberty Emeralds, 28-27

Dick Dulin's Morgan Repealers evened their standing with the Liberty Emeralds by outscoring the Sullivan county cage experts 28-27 Thursday at White Eagle Hall before an attendance that did not come up to expectations. Those who did turn out, however, enjoyed every minute of the flashy and closely played contest that saw the Repealers on the short end of the point making for three-quarters of the battle, only to come through in the final stages to edge out their opponents by one point.

As the result of their victory, the Repealers are now even with the Liberty quintet which won over them 33-31 earlier in the season, and the credit for the Morgans' success goes to Jimmy Merritt, Norm Niles and Wes Hyatt, who did the bulk of the scoring for them, as shown by the box score. K. Fiske led the Emerald point collectors.

Cancellation Blamed.

Possibly the attendance was smaller than anticipated owing to the cancellation of the match between the Repealers and Spinnys, keen rivals, who were hooked to fight it out in their third contest. The Spinny brigade won the other two and hoped to make it three straight, but a little squabble over which team Joe Dulin should play with, he being on the roster of both teams, forced the battle to be called off, Managers Dulin of the Repealers and Short of the Port Ewen quintet failing to come to an agreement.

Regarding the capability of his club in comparison to the Spinnys, Manager Dulin hurled a challenge at them, daring them to fight it out on any court in the county, except Pythian Hall, their home battleground. Manager Short, accepting the defy, stated he was willing to meet the Repealers on any floor, including their own, White Eagle Hall, provided Joe Dulin be classed as a spectator, not playing with either team.

So the two rivals likely will clash at White Eagle in the near future, treating the fans to a contest for which they are waiting. Should this match fail to go through the result likely will be no boon to basketball, many contend, as such flareups are no asset to the game.

Repealers at Rosendale.

With the victory over Liberty chalked on the credit side of their books, the Repealers will travel to Rosendale Saturday night for a tilt with the Firemen of the village over whom they hold two wins. Indications are that the contest will be the best of the three and that there will be a record crowd on hand to see it. The Morgans will use the same lineup as last night. Johnny Regan will depend on Kelder, Cullum, Koenig, Winkky, Jeghers, Bittner and Rask to bring victory to Rosendale.

Preliminary to the feature at the White Eagle, there were two contests that vied with the main go for the spotlight. The Buckeyes won over the Standards, 23-17, and the Senecas outshot the Chocolateers, 27-24.

Port Jervis High Plays Here Tonight

The DUSO Basketball League schedule for tonight has Port Jervis playing at the Kingston High School gym against the Maroon and White varsity of Coach G. Warren Kiss whose starting lineup will probably be the same as that which took on against Raymond Riordon Prep Wednesday, losing 40-56.

Fighting the losing battle against the Highland boys was a combination made up from the following group of cagers who could not get started right and thus failed to cop the duke in the free lance contest: Rhymer, Zeeh, Sussin and Moore, forwards; Linden, center; DeVeau, Debrosky, Rifenbary and Smith, guards.

Rhymer and Zeeh did the bulk of Kingston's scoring against the prep counsiters and are counted on to loop the ball for the most of the Kingmen's points against Port Jervis, one of the most formidable teams in the DUSO circuit, standing second on the list of wins and losses. Kingston is third and hopes to displace the Tri-State cagers tonight.

Besides the game here there are two other DUSO contests tonight, Middletown at Newburgh and Monticello at Ellenville.

Ashokan Quintet Outscores Caseys

In an overtime basketball game at Salvation Army Hall, the Ashokan Chevrolets won over the Kingston Knights of Columbus Thursday night by the score of 43-42. At the end of the regulation time the tally was 38 all. At half time the Knights led 21-15 but failed to check the villagers in the final stages of the contest.

Historical Sketch of Turkey

Turkey, now reduced in size to about 175,000 square miles, comprises a portion of Thrace adjacent to Constantinople and is now mainly confined to Asia Minor. Agriculture is primitive, but the soil, where cultivable, is fertile and produces considerable crops of wheat, barley, cotton, nuts, tobacco, figs, olives, grapes and other fruits. About 1,500 miles of railways are in operation. The so-called Bagdad railway extends from the Bosphorus via Adana and Aleppo to Nisibin. Constantinople is the capital; Smyrna, an important seaport; Brusa, the ancient capital and center of silk manufacture; Sivas, a mining center; Angora, the provisional capital.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Our "tenth anniversary" poll among the leading sports writers and critics of the country, to find out just who they rank the great performers and leaders of the decade from 1923 to 1932, seems likely to develop the greatest interest and at least revive, if it does not settle, some of the outstanding arguments of the greatest period in world athletics. For example:

How do Dempsey and Tunney rank now in the minds of the experts, with more perspective at their command on which to balance their judgment?

All factors considered, does Babe Ruth or Bob Jones belong at the top of the heap in the matter of individual achievement?

Who, among the leaders, wielded the greatest influence? Rockne or Rickard, Huggins or Mack, E. K. Hall or Branch Rickey? Four of these six have passed from the scenes of their triumphs and struggles, but if you think they didn't make a lasting impression, you should take a peek at the returns which we expect shortly to turn loose.

What woman star alone challenges for a place in the ranking list for the decade?

1923—The Glamorous Year.

The sporting clans have done a lot of gabbing about great achievements and thrills. The old-timers are hard to discourage and difficult for the post-war generation to refute. A good deal of good ancient hearsay has now been magnified and polished up. What Sullivan and Corbett would have done to Dempsey and Tunney! How the old Baltimore Orioles would have outsmarted these Yankees!

But we can go right back to 1923, nevertheless, for the greatest outburst of sporting activity for all time.

Bob Jones won his first national championship that year, the Open, and he was never without at least one big golfing crown from that time until he quit with all of them in hand. Helen Wills scaled the title heights for the first time in 1923, and she still is supreme in women's tennis.

Red Grange started his three year rampage that fall. Paavo Nurmi ran an outdoor mile in 4:10 2-5 that stood all assaults until October, 1931. Miller Huggins piloted the Yankees to their first world championship. Dempsey and Firpo slugged each other for 4 minutes and 53 seconds of the most spectacular heavyweight fisticuffing of all time.

If your pulse doesn't still rise, what else do you want? The Battle of Gettysburg and the Johnstown Flood for a double-header?

What Value Box-Office?

One of the things that seems most to disturb our reflections is just how much importance, in weighing an individual's spot, we should put upon his box-office value?

Bob Jones drew bigger golf galleries than anyone before or since, but they were a handful by comparison to the customer appeal of Grange or Dempsey or Ruth.

Tilden and Johnston played before packed tennis galleries for years, drawing perhaps as much as $50,000 at one time. Dempsey and Tunney fought before two crowds that paid around $4,500,000 for the privilege.

Red Grange probably played football in college before close to 1,000,000 spectators. Paavo Nurmi's debut in the old Madison Square Garden packed 15,000 cash customers inside and turned 10,000 more away. Yet over the ten-year stretch I doubt if many would rank the redhead above the Finn as a soloist in sport.

Jerry Wright of Poughkeepsie fights there at Columbus Institute next Monday night against "Tiger" Smith of Hartford, Conn., in the feature of five six-round bouts.

Hebrews Not Afraid of the Collegians

Regarding the challenge buried at the Hebrew-Americans by the Spencer Collegians, the Hebrews have the following to say:

"We have been taking on all comers since the start of the basketball season and at various times have issued challenges to local teams but Spencers ignored them.

"If the Collegians will kindly call Sam Rosenberg, booking manager of the H.-A., they will be given the first open date on the schedule. Sam's phone is 3432."

Holdouts Still Problem For Some Of Major Clubs

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Spring and the training camps are just around the corner, but for some major league clubs the holdout situation remains a serious problem yet to be solved.

The magnates, when they adopted a general policy of retrenchment and cut deeply into salaries, were prepared for a somewhat larger quota of indignant protests from star performers than is customary but probably not even they expected so heavy a list of dissatisfied players.

Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Bill Dicker, Red Lucas, Ernie Lombardi, Hack Wilson, Joe Stripp, Wes Ferrell, Willie Kamm, Willis Hudlin, Frank Frisch and Heinie Manush are just a few of the headliners who have balked at terms.

Some Exceptions.

There are striking exceptions of course. The Pittsburgh Pirates, who surprised the National League by finishing second last season with inexperienced men at both shortstop and second base, have signed every player on the 1933 roster and are busily engaged preparing for the training season and perhaps a pennant.

The Boston Red Sox likewise have all their men under contract and the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs each have only one player outside the fold. The Giants have yet to snare Outfielder Len Koenecke and the Cubs still are awaiting Outfielder Vince Barton's contract. Barton, however, usually saves postage and appears at the training ground with his contract signed and sealed.

The Washington Senators, hoping to give the New York Yankees or anybody else a battle for the American League flag, have only four unsigned players—Manush, Moe Berg, Bob Burke and Bob Friedrich.

Dull Outlook.

The outlook for the others, however, is not so rosy. Complete information is not available in view of the fact that a number of clubs, the Phillies, Athletics, Browns, Cardinals, Tigers, Braves and Reds, decline to confess which players are signed and which are not.

However there is enough data on hand to indicate a serious situation which probably will clarify itself in time.

The Yankees have 11 unsigned players, including Ruth, Gehrig, Dicker, Tony Lazzeri, Earle Combs, Charley Ruffing, Ben Chapman, Herb Pennock and Frank Crosetti.

The Cleveland Indians still are arguing with Ferrell, Kamm, Hudlin, Dick Porter, Roy Spencer and three others of lesser importance while the Chicago White Sox, so far as public announcement goes, have not yet succeeded in getting Evar Swanson, Chad Kimsey, Sam Jones, Luke Appling, Billy Sullivan and a couple of others to sign.

If the Athletics have any real salary problems they probably will center about George Earnshaw for it is understood that virtually all the others are under contract. The St. Louis Browns are known to have signed only six players including Sam Gray, Jim Levey, Bruce Campbell, Muddy Ruel, Wally Herbert and one rookie. No information at all has come out of the Detroit Tigers' front office.

Brooklyn List Big

Of National League clubs, the Brooklyn Dodgers have by far the largest hold-out list. The 14 players still unsigned include such well known figures as Hack Wilson, Stripp, Ray Benge, Al Lopez, Johnny Frederick and Danny Taylor.

Although Frisch is the sole known holdout, only Rogers Hornsby, George Watkins, Ernie Orsatti, Pepper Martin, Jess Haines, Jim Wilson and Charley Gelbert are known to have signed Cardinal contracts. The situation is somewhat similar at Cincinnati where the Reds are understood to have signed only four players yet only Lucas and Lombardi are definitely listed as dissatisfied. Jim Bottomley was a holdout but was understood to have agreed to a [illegible] offer.

Notwithstanding the [illegible] of recalcitrant players, baseball observers expected history to repeat itself and find them all safely in the fold before the 1933 campaign opens. Most of them, in fact, probably will come to terms within the next [illegible] of weeks.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston — "Lone Star" — A story of border life and mother and sister who harbor fugitive slaves of the white plantation owner in a few scenes. Herbert Marshall as the disbarred Texas lawyer who seeks Rosita Moreno as partner in the old Alamo Affair. The fine attraction also of the most exciting picture to be shown at this time is a story of the air mail service. The scenes of the air mail plane are fascinating pictured and a fine cast includes Pat O'Brien, Ralph Bellamy, Slim Summerville and Gloria Stuart.

Broadway — "Rasputin and the Empress" — A play that concerns a woman who takes the difficult task of changing a mad monster into a normal man. The story is told with many and various scenes beginning to end, plus some capable dramatizing by Jason Sedgwick, Lionel Barrymore, Ethel Barrymore, Diana MacDonald.

Tomorrow

Kingston — "What No Beer?" — Buster Keaton with his sad and expressionless countenance works with James Seabrook. Jimmie Cagney and Roscoe Karns are a couple of gangsters at their latest delight pastime who find they have a brewery on their hands. What occurs in the efforts to run a brewery is a riot of comedy that is both good and original. Mr. Keaton and Mr. Durante make an ideal comedy-straight team, and they are ably supported in their efforts by stuttering Roscoe Ates, John Miljan, and Phyllis Barry.

Orpheum — Same.

Broadway — "The Vampire Bat" — Another unnatural film spectacle from the same school as "Dracula," "Frankenstein," and other horror pictures. It's a weird tale set in a little German village in which a vampire is at work. High excitement and fear reign from the start of the talkie until the finish, and although the plot is hard to believe, some excellent photography contributes much to the success of the show. The cast offers Lionel Atwill, Fay Wray, and Melvyn Douglas.

Food Value of Nuts

Most of the edible nuts take their food value from the soil in which they grow. Some nuts, however, are richer than others in the elements which go to make up a well balanced diet. Nuts are rich in fats and proteins, and contain a fair amount of carbohydrates. Nuts are also rich in phosphorus, iron, and calcium, and contain a small amount of vitamin B. WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Feb. 17.—Mike Joyce states a good Technocrat is one who has some use for those cigarette vending machines he has installed.

The meanest man in West Hurley has something now to write about. There are two measles cases reported.

Regarding the nomadic population, Mrs. Neumann has not yet returned from New York city; Miss Mae McAuliffe has returned from a short trip to New York city, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Wilbur and Mrs. Charles Hogan spent last Wednesday in Troy; Miss E. McDonald and James Hogan of Brooklyn were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McDonald, Bernard Smith was up over the week-end; Daniel Rooney, Sr., spent the holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Rooney.

Our growing population: Master Carl Smith, Junior, aged two weeks, has taken up his permanent abode in West Hurley at the home of his parents.

There has been a complaint levelled at those new jig saw puzzles now in stock at the post office. They evidently consume a vast amount of time to assemble. For instance, take that one of a barnyard scene. The lower left hand corner depicted a setting hen but by the time the party working on it had fitted together the rake and hay mow, the blame eggs had hatched.

There is a lot of activity in the Gaynor domicile. On Saturday, the Woodstock 4-H Home Making Club met here and under Mrs. Gaynor's skilled guidance, prepared, cooked and served a valentine luncheon amidst appropriate decorations. Children over ten years old and living in West Hurley are cordially invited to join. For particulars see William Gaynor.

On Tuesday Mrs. Gaynor arranged a birthday party in honor of Miss Curley of West Hurley. Mrs. Jerome Smith, Miss N. Finn and Mrs. Hogan were among those present. It was announced that Miss Curley is planning to leave this week to visit her sister in Astoria, Long Island.

The scrip plan will be successful if it obtains a working majority, but better still, what is needed is a majority working.

Richard Passerini was a business caller here last Wednesday.

The Chatterbox is about again. It contains a lot of interesting school news.

Mr. Hoffman is up and about as evident by the item relating to his constructing a shelf in the school for the kindergarten class.

The poster appearing on the school wall, a creation of Miss Betty Glidden, has potential possibilities. It should be adopted and applied to our everyday religious, political, social and economic life. It reads, "Don't talk, do!"

An exchange of valentines took place at the school Tuesday afternoon. After the "I Love Yous" had been evenly distributed the class returned to their study of Chili.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred DeGraff and son, Lewis, of Montana spent Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stoutenberg.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, Feb. 17—The Plattekill firemen were called Tuesday noon to extinguish a chimney fire in the tenant house of Mrs. Laura Minard, which was occupied by Charles Costello and family. Presented Forged Check

The signature of Manuel Dittenheimer of Ellenville, an assistant attorney general, was forged to a check of $216.81 presented and cashed at the First National Bank & Trust Co., Ellenville, a few days ago. The check was drawn in favor of Abraham Rothkopf, Ellenville merchant, and was presented by a man who told Miss Anna Hoornbeek of the Trust Company that he was Rothkopf. Miss Hoornbeek cashed the check and the forgery was not discovered until the bank later informed Mr. Dittenheimer that his account was overdrawn, when an investigation showed that no such check had been drawn by Mr. Dittenheimer. The Trust Company is insured against such a loss.

Report on Fouhy Claim

A report of the commissioners of appraisal who heard the Agnes M. Fouhy claim has been filed by the commission. The commission was appointed to determine the amount of damage sustained by a land taking in 1926 for the construction of the Ulster & Delaware, Part 3, County Highway No. 31 in the town of Shandaken. The commissioners, Walter N. Gill, William Wilbur and Gross Schoonmaker, report the value of the Fouhy land taken to be $6,600. Robert G. Groves, county attorney, appeared in behalf of the County of Ulster and Charles W. Walton appeared for the claimant.

Bring a Girl

By JANE OSBORN

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"BUT I told you when you phoned this morning, that I couldn't come—" Ned Fairfax was holding his telephone with one hand and signing letters with the other, reading them, and talking to his sister all at one time. "I've got a day's work at the office still before me and it's nearly five, one of the men is away in the output department and I've got to go over there and take care of his mail. I'll be dictating until nine."

"But you've got to come, simply got to," his sister Nellie informed him. "It will absolutely ruin that party if you don't. You are needed to make up the fourth table, that's all there is about it. We shan't start cards until after nine so it won't matter if you're late. And no one will mind if you aren't in evening dress. Just don't loaf over your dictation. Don't flirt with the stenographer and you'll be able to get here in time."

Nellie hung up the receiver and Jim realized that he would have to do his sister's bidding. As a matter of fact he had finished with his own work. He would go over to the output department where he had been told a stenographer would be waiting for him, work an hour, send out for a sandwich and a cup of coffee and plod ahead until nine.

He was not entirely sorry that he was going. Nellie had told him that she had arranged to have an attractive girl there for him.

Then his telephone rang again.

"Say, Ned," came his sister's voice. "You've got to bring a girl. That girl Molly was bringing for you can't come. She mixed up her dates and finds she was going to dinner and the opera. Molly says she's a winner. Oh, well, we'll have you meet yet." Nellie would listen to none of Ned's protests. How could he ask a girl at that late hour? what sort of girl would go with a man when she didn't know the hostess? Ned wanted to know. But Nellie wasn't interested in details. Simply she expected Ned, and a girl, to appear as soon after nine as possible.

Ned did try to get a girl, called up two or three friends who politely found excuses. Only thing to do was to go himself without the girl, and take the consequences. Fortunately the dictating went along smoothly enough, the stenographer who was waiting for him in the output department was a good one. Not the sort that wasted time. He sent out for sandwiches and coffee for two, and they stopped for ten minutes to eat. Then he noticed for the first time that the girl was at least presentable.

"What are you doing after you get through here?" he asked.

"Going home," said the girl.

"You get paid so much an hour for overtime. Any objections for working a few hours more? Not just this sort of work, playing bridge. Do you play bridge?"

The girl looked at him narrowly. "Yes," she said. "I never refuse a chance to make an honest nickle or two. Trying to save enough to go to college. That's why I do overtime work here. Want me as a stop gap. I suppose. I'll play bridge, but I won't dance!"

Ned continued his dictating with a load off his shoulder and once or twice as he dictated he regarded the girl a little more narrowly than he had before. Well, she wasn't bad looking, she'd pass in any crowd. He'd introduce her as an old friend. "What's your name?" he asked abruptly.

"Laura Hough," she told him.

"I'll have to call you Laura," he said. "You're an old friend of mine, any objection?"

"No," said Laura dryly.

The dictation over, Laura went to the dressing room to primp a little and reappeared closely wrapped in her trim fur coat. When she slipped it off twenty minutes later in the hall of Nellie's apartment Ned saw that she was wearing a neat little evening frock. "How come?" said Ned with an appraising glance.

"I had it in the office," she said. "I had expected to go out." But she got no further. Nellie and Molly were greeting her with shrieks of surprise.

"So you got here after all," said Molly. "What about the opera and your date—"

"Here's my date," said Laura. "The 'opera' didn't last as long as I thought it would, and, I'm here."

"If you really are the girl I think you are," Ned asked her drawing her aside, "how come you're working? Molly thinks you have all sorts of money, and she really bellered the opera story."

"Of course that was a joke more or less," said the girl. "But I'm not quite the poor little working girl you might suppose, and I could have gone to the opera if I had wanted. You see I wanted to go to college, but my father had objections. So I got a job on the sly to earn enough to go anyway. I'd have to have some sort of a career."

"Unless you married?" suggested Ned.

"May I consider that a proposal?" asked Laura loud enough for Molly and Nellie to overhear.

"Please don't joke about it too much," Ned said so that only Laura heard. "I might have courage enough some day to ask you."

And later when Ned and Laura announced their engagement it was generally understood that their troth had been plighted there in Nellie's little apartment that night.

Declares for Aid To Dairy Farmer

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 17 (AP).—State Senator Perley A. Pitcher, chairman of the New York Milk Committee, speaking at the annual farm week, today declared the dairy issue was either immediate aid to the milk farmer or abandoning him to "any radical sentiment which may be promulgated."

The dairy farmer, Pitcher said, "has heard the voice that is calling him to join a milk strike. He has become so discouraged that talk of bloodshed and riots and destruction of property in such a strike does not frighten him."

The Watertown legislator expressed confidence in a price control board, the creation of which he called for in a bill sponsored by his committee which surveyed the production and distribution of milk, in the area of greatest demand in the world—populous New York state.

"The question is whether we shall let the situation drift and muddle through and take the chance that our conservative dairymen shall not become radical," said Pitcher, "or whether we shall entrust his immediate future to the guiding hand of a milk control board."
